

JANESVILLE DEMONSTRATES ADVANTAGES OF LOCATION FOR WISCONSIN STATE FAIR

Special Legislative Committee Inspecting Available Sites Is Given Cordial Welcome and Rousing Entertainment in City Today.

OFFER ALL LAND FOR THE SITE

ELABORATE BANQUET IS SERVED AT GRAND HOTEL AFTER WHICH DELEGATION IS GIVEN A HARNESS RACING PROGRAM AT DRIVING PARK—TAKEN FOR DRIVE TO MOUNT ZION AND TO SCHOOL FOR BLIND.

Janesville today entertained the legislative fair location committee, showing them the advantages of locating the state fair in this city. It is to be removed from Milwaukee, from the moment they arrived at nine o'clock, over the Northwestern road, they were in the hands of the Philistines, as one expressed it, and every Philistine talked Janesville every minute.

Mayor James F. Sweeney, Frank P. Croak and George S. Parker went to Madison on the early train to come down with the legislators. At the depot here they were greeted by the local committee, which had arranged to have a complimentary concert in the depot park, were loaded into waiting autos and driven around the residence portion of the city.

Favorably Impressed.

The committee, composed of Assemblymen George Carpenter, Barbara A. Gullikson, Cameron, Charles H. Everett, Racine, D. D. Conway, Grand Rapids, Charles Lentz, Mayville, James Larsen, Marinette, and State Senators M. T. White, Vilmar, W. J. Weigle, Milwaukee, and W. J. Blicher, Beloit, were very favorably impressed with the Janesville streets and expressed surprise that the city was so large and so well equipped. The committee had been told that the depot was the best place for the fair, and they were told that the depot was the best place for the fair, and they were told that the depot was the best place for the fair.

A Rousing Reception.

Headed by the Moose Band and Grand Marshal of the Day, Charles Putnam, the procession reached the depot just before the Madison train pulled in. Here were found a vast throng of citizens, the high school being dismissed for an hour and all the students being in evidence. As the guests of the Park Ben Company stepped into the waiting autos, they were pinned with a buttonhole of pansies by the Misses Sophia Koerner, Isabel Ehringer, Helen Morrissey and Marie Koenig.

Following the ride through the residence portion of the city, on both sides of the river, the committee were taken in charge of by individual friends and escorted through the business district of the city and entered the hotel at twelve o'clock. They sat down to a dinner at the Grand Hotel.

Have Elaborate Dinner.

Landlord J. F. Sweeney of the Grand Hotel had attended to every detail to make the banquet a red letter one. The tables were handsomely decorated with baskets of roses, the viands were perfectly prepared and faultlessly served, all indicating the excellence of the Janesville hotel service.

During the dinner music was furnished by the George L. Hatch orchestra and Mr. Hatch sang several selections in his own inimitable manner.

Those who were entertained at the dinner, besides the legislative committee, were: Fred Clements, James A. Fathens, E. C. Bangs, George S. Parker, M. G. Jeffers, H. H. Bliss, J. W. Benyamin, E. H. Richardson, J. Cunningham, P. Starr, T. S. Nolan, Dr. Wilfong, R. E. Wisner, Edw. Amerpohl, C. Snyder, Jos. Connors, A. P. Lovejoy, N. L. Carle, F. E. Zimmerman, William H. Dougherty, J. A. Deeming, E. E. Van Pelt, William Croak, S. J. Jacobs, C. K. Miltmore, F. P. Croak, C. S. Putnam, R. M. Cummings, Michael Hayes, D. Atwood, William Kuhlman, G. U. Fisher.

Janesville Exploited.

Janesville's advantages as the best possible location for the state fair should be moved from Milwaukee were exploited cleverly and thoroughly following the banquet by the following speakers: Mayor James A. Fathens, M. G. Jeffers, George S. Parker, Charles S. Putnam, M. P. Richardson, W. H. Dougherty and J. Cunningham.

Not one stone was left unturned in the endeavor to show the city in the best possible light. Its beautiful location, its unequal transportation facilities, its situation in the heart of the richest farming country in the west, and the dense population of the continuous territory were all touched upon.

Afternoon Program.

Following the dinner the committee was escorted to the Janesville Driving Park where a short exhibition program on the fastest harness speedway in the middle west had been arranged by Charles S. Putnam of the Driving Park Association.

The committee was given ample opportunity to inspect the park which is long-sought, guiding seniors and the ground adjoining any and all of which will be available for a state fair park. In fact the committee was Assured that the city would furnish as much ground adjoining the driving park as would be necessary.

The special beauty of the Parker and Palmer addition to the west and south of the park was pointed out to the committee as well as the level character of all the territory. It was emphatically presented that there was no other location in the state which could compare the Janesville park for natural beauty and advantages.

Hide Through Country.

But in booming the city of Janesville as a place for the state fair the committee in charge of the visitors did not forget to include the rich fertility of the Rock county farming country in their list of advantages. A ride through the country east of the city was made, and the committee was shown the rolling stretches of rich farming lands extending in every direction. The term "hosses" indicated the prosperity of the region. It was a sight calculated to inspire even the most skeptical with the thought that in a city such as Janesville, located in such a territory, there would certainly be the place for the greatest fair in the west.

HUERTA POINTS OUT MEXICAN ATTITUDE TO UNITED STATES

In Conference With American Ambassador Explains That Foreigners Will Be Protected But Treaties Are Impossible.

Mexico City, Mex., May 9.—President Victoriano Huerta during his conference yesterday with Henry Lane Wilson, American ambassador, stated very clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States. The following official version of the conference was given to the Associated Press today.

Abstain From Treaties.

"Provisional President Huerta respectfully stated to Ambassador Wilson, that diplomatic having referred to official matters, that before the government of Mexico was disposed to arrange the affairs pending between it and the government of the United States. It was pointed out, however, that for the time being the American ambassador should abstain from making any suggestion of a treaty, which the government of the United States did not recognize. The government of Mexico all agreed would be ineffective in view of the fact that the government of Mexico had no personality before the government of the United States.

To Protect Foreigners.

"In addition, however, the government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States, has adopted and always adopted the policy of protecting the inhabitants of the country whether its own nationality or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been injured in any manner by past revolutions.

"The United States and all the peoples of Europe have proofs that the government of Mexico is specially pledged to give guarantees to every citizen without the distinction of nationality."

REMARKABLE THEFT IN NEW YORK CITY

Young Woman's Hand With Valuable Jewels Cut Off In Accident, Stolen by Unknown Person.

New York, May 9.—One of the most remarkable thefts ever committed in this city was that of a young woman's hand, which was cut off in an accident, and the jewels which were on it were stolen by an unknown person.

The woman, who is believed to be a French maid, lost last night when she fell in front of an elevated railway train. In a faint she toppled from the station platform and was dragged for some distance by the train which bore down upon her. Hundreds who looked on expected to learn that she had been killed, but her worst injury was the cutting off of her left hand. Realizing the extent of her injury she shrieked "Where is my hand? Don't lose my rings." Investigation proved that the severed hand, on which the hand was cut off, was a diamond, had fallen between the ties to the street. A policeman was immediately sent in search of the missing member, but there was no sign of it and he declared someone in the crowd below picked it up and made off with it and the rings.

FIFTEEN FEET FALL KILLS ARMY AVIATOR

Military Aviator Killed in Flight to Los Angeles—Only Falls Fifteen Feet.

Los Angeles, May 9.—Lieutenant J. D. Park, a military aviator, who started from San Diego this morning on a flight to Los Angeles, was killed at about eight o'clock.

Park met his death in a fall of less than fifteen feet. He had alighted a quarter of a mile from the olive school when he was struck by a heavy mist that confused him as to his bearings, and after giving a message to a little girl to telephone to Los Angeles, he rose again. Then he swooped over a low tree and crashed into a tree. He was dead when the girl and her father reached his side.

Keeping Track of Children's Needs.

Children of today would scorn the clothes their mothers wore when they were little in childhood. There have been tremendous advances made in comfort and convenience during the last decade. Doctors, nurses, and experienced mothers have all had a hand in solving the problems of children's apparel. Never has there been such a variety to meet every possible demand of health, comfort, and style as there is in the shops today.

The careful mother will keep in touch with the world's progress in these lines by reading about the clothes and accessories advertised in the columns of THE GAZETTE.

In selecting her children's summer wardrobe she cannot afford to overlook anything for their comfort that she might easily procure if she knew just where it was to be had.

OPEN NEGOTIATIONS TO RAISE BLOCKADE AND EVACUATE FORT

Montenegrin Cabinet Takes Charge of Affairs Looking Toward Final Settlement of Difficulties.

Cettinje, May 9.—A Montenegrin cabinet under the premiership of General Vukobratovic was formed today to take the place of the government which resigned when King Nicholas decided to evacuate Scutari. The foreign office immediately afterward opened negotiations with the commanding officers of the international fleet which has been engaged in blockading the coast of Montenegro and arrangements were made for the evacuation of Scutari. This began yesterday and by Sunday the last of the Montenegrin soldiers are to march out of the city.

The foreign admirals will then land detachments from the fleet and the formal surrender of the old Turkish fortress will be made to the combined forces of the king and the Montenegrin army.

King Nicholas said today in a speech to the Montenegrin parliament that in the interests of general peace and in order to save Montenegro and the entire Serbian nation, he was forced to give in to the European powers. Russia, Serbia and Greece, he declared, counselled submission on the part of Montenegro. Russia, however, undertook to continue to protect the little kingdom.

SENATE ENGROSSES ROSA'S RESOLUTION

Proposition to Amend Constitution to Allow For Initiative and Referendum Is Likely to Pass.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—Assemblyman Rosa's resolution to amend the constitution so as to permit the passage of laws for the initiative, referendum and recall was engrossed by the senate last night. The amendment will come up for final passage on Tuesday. There has been no discussion of this resolution by the people in the fall of 1914 for adoption. The senate also advanced the Hurley joint resolution providing that cities may purchase land for public use. The object of this resolution is to permit the larger cities to build houses in the city outskirts for laborers who are unable to build their own homes.

Measure Helps Farmers.

Assemblyman Nye's joint resolution to permit the state to loan money to farmers and take a mortgage on the land, was sent to engrossment. Economists claim that this change in the constitution greatly will aid the farmers of northern Wisconsin. Mr. Nye believes that it will effectively check the increasing land tenancy rate in Wisconsin. The senate engrossed the Hurley resolution, permitting a direct vote on the proposition in the state and readjustment of the judicial circuits. The resolution fixing the salary of members of the legislature of $500 a year was engrossed. At the present time legislators receive a salary of $500 for the two year term.

Other Senate Matters.

It also passed the Schindler bill prohibiting the sale of parcels of less than one acre, and the bill limiting the hours of labor for women in certain occupations and the I. N. Stewart bill changing the name of Lawrence University to Lawrence College. Assemblyman Larsen's joint resolution, giving all five companies in the state as bird reserves was concurred in. Later in the day Mr. Hansen bade his friends goodbye and no pressure could be brought upon him to compel him to remain.

TUBERCULOSIS CURE STILL UNDISCOVERED SURGEONS' DECISION

Dr. Friedmann's Vaccine Fails to Deserve Confidence Given, Declare Doctors Following Investigation.

Washington, May 9.—The public health service observations so far into the claims of a vaccine introduced by Dr. Friedmann with tuberculosis vaccine do not "justify that confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity" is the opinion of the surgeons who have conducted the government's investigation.

First Authentic Conclusion.

This first authentic and official conclusion from the test was announced here today before the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis by Dr. John F. Anderson, director of the government's hygienic laboratory, and Dr. A. M. Stimson, another public health surgeon who were detailed to observe the progress of the Friedmann patients at Mt. Sinai hospital in New York.

"We believe that at the present time," says the report, "we are not yet in a position to express an opinion based on the present conditions under observation. The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged and is characterized by periods of advancement and retrogression, and is also one in which physical influences are a powerful factor. Time is therefore, necessary to properly evaluate the effects of the measures."

Has Some Value.

"We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of this preparation and on the other hand it is necessary to guard against too great an optimism in respect to its merits. Without presenting in detail our own observations under observation, we are in a position to state that the facts thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity."

No Cure Discovered.

Immediately after the presentation of the public health service report a resolution was unanimously adopted declaring it to be the judgment of the surgeons that no specific cure for tuberculosis had yet been discovered to warrant the confidence of the public or the medical profession.

Not a Cure Discovered.

The resolution recommended to all that present methods of treatment be continued. Dr. Friedmann was not mentioned by name in the resolution.

M'GOVERN'S IRE IS NOW FULLY AROUSED

GOVERNOR IN A STATEMENT BRANDS BACKERS OF SO-CALLED REPUBLICAN BANQUET AS CONSPIRATORS

ACCUSES NEWSPAPERS

La Crosse and Milwaukee Publications Blamed for Reading Him From Party Which He Claims Is Still His.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—"If ever political insincerity and hypocrisy were at a premium, this is the time. Wisconsin is the place, and the chief traffickers are the small coterie of men who give themselves the right to act for the republican party in arranging for a so-called republican banquet to be held May 15th."

This is the leading paragraph of a statement issued today by Governor McGovern in his comment in connection with the banquet arranged by the republican state central committee of Wisconsin. Continuing the governor's statement reads in part:

"Beautiful inconsistency."

"One moment, these self appointed leaders prate unceasingly about 'getting together' and a 'handy' but the very next, they joyfully proclaim they have suffered in driving the head of the republican party in Wisconsin out of its ranks and into another political organization. That beautiful consistency in fact, breathes before him for declining to attend their gatherings and then declare they never expected him to accept their invitation."

Accuses Newspapers.

He accuses two newspapers, one at La Crosse and the other at Milwaukee, of sounding the tocsin that the governor has left the republican party and adds:

"Well, he has not, nor has he accepted the invitation to attend the progressive banquet in Milwaukee on June 6. He stands now precisely where he has always stood. His self respect would not permit him to buy a ticket to a banquet ostensibly republican, but in the engagement of which he was so consulted."

Mere Factional Rally.

The governor then points to the proposed banquet at Madison, as a mere factional rally and says that not harmonious, but discordant, factions are the only moving back of it. In conclusion the governor's statement reads:

"Whenever a gathering is proposed in the interests of real harmony by men whose acts and words they wish to promote, and who do not regard it as a party affair, I shall be one of the first to join hands with them."

Scott's Statement.

The republican banquet to be held in Madison on May 15th, is an all-republican affair, and the republican party, even though he may have been a life-long democrat.

This was the statement of Senator G. E. Scott, chairman of the republican state central committee, after he had been questioned, said the state chairman, "I will make this statement."

Everyone who wishes to affiliate with the republican party is invited, whether he voted for Taft, for Wilson, for Roosevelt, for Debs, or for Chapin last fall, or even if he has been a life-long member of another party. Those who are not members of the republican party should continue to be successful in Wisconsin and wish to have a part in continuing its success and its principles. Have been given an invitation, and it is hereby given that the action already taken by the committee on arrangements. Tickets have already been reserved for men who took all views of the campaign last fall, but who do not think that the republican party should be continued in charge of the affairs of state in Wisconsin.

Tickets in Demand.

So many requests for tickets are pouring in on the committee that arrangements that the gymnasium proper. Instead of the gymnasium annex, has been secured. The state central committee meets here on the same day and headquarters for the day will be at the hotel. Tickets will be served or otherwise, may be secured. Requests for tickets will be filled as long as room remains, but since the committee has not yet ordered for a definite number of tickets, those who wish to come are urged to make certain that they can be given a place by applying to Sol Levitan, Madison this week.

National Situation.

Washington, May 9.—While many progressive republican congressmen were leaving today for a conference on the re-organization of the republican party, some of the "old guard" were dubiously were shaking their heads.

Senator Smoot and other regulars expressed similar sentiments.

PHELPS COMMITTED TO TWO YEAR TERM ON PLEA OF GUILTY

Sentenced to Green Bay Reformatory by Judge Field This Morning.

—Makes No Defense.

Cyrus Phelps pleaded guilty before Judge Field in the municipal court this morning to an assault with intent to commit a more serious crime upon Miss Fredendall, the fifteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Fredendall, 607 South Lincoln street, on Wednesday afternoon, May 7. He was sentenced to two years imprisonment in the state reformatory at Green Bay. Phelps made no defense, offered no excuses, and willingly waived the examination to which he was entitled. He did not care to consult with attorneys nor notify his relatives of his predicament before making his plea, and the only wish he expressed was that his punishment be made as light as possible. Phelps had been indicted for harm upon the girl, and her parents did not desire that he be dealt with severely. Judge Field made the sentence a light one. Before it was passed, the prisoner had sworn to swear that he had never been convicted of any previous offense, and also to answer a few questions as to his past conduct. Phelps stated that he had not attended school since 1908, when he was fourteen years old. He had persisted in playing truant and his parents took him out of school. Since that time he had been doing such work as he could find. Last summer he had been on a farm near Genoa, Wis., and on his return to Janesville, he had entered into the employ of Mr. Fredendall on a farm near Genoa Junction. He came with the family to Janesville two months ago, and had been working at the home until the day that he made the attack on Miss Fredendall.

Since coming to Janesville, Phelps has worked at several jobs, at the Law Office of Mr. J. C. Bailey, a cement contractor and building contractor, not holding any one long. He admitted on question that he had been thinking more or less in the last two or three years. Patrolman Dorn brought him up from Woodstock, where he was placed under arrest by the Sheriff, yesterday afternoon. He said that he would not have to run away from Janesville had not the aunt of the Fredendall girl told him to leave town at once.

DRAMATIC READING PROVES RARE TREAT

Mme. Labadie Gives Wonderful Interpretation of Percy MacKaye's Play, "To-morrow."

Seidman has a Janesville audience and the opportunity of hearing a dramatic reading of such rare ability as Mme. Labadie, whose interpretation of Percy MacKaye's play, "To-morrow," was enjoyed by a fair sized audience at the Congregational church last evening. Mme. Labadie has a wonderful voice capable of expressing, with equal impressiveness, the emotions of both the male and female characters in this novel drama, which treats of the new theory of sentiment so much talked of at the present time.

Without stage settings of any kind, Mme. Labadie relied merely on a brief description of the situation and her remarkable reading and facial expression and acting kept the audience in as close touch with the story and its message as would the players on the stage.

The play itself has unusual strength and it is fitting as it does of the sociological and scientific theory in regard to marriage through the practical means of human experiences and adventures. It has a message which is real and true. But it was its interpretation that appealed. It was the work of the artist presenting a flood of human emotions and feelings with great effectiveness.

PLACE NIGHT SHIFT AT WORK ON BRIDGE

Construction Company Encounters Difficulties in Building of Cofferdam at Railroad Bridge.

Work on the upper railroad bridge, which the Cleary-White Construction company is erecting, is being pushed with all possible speed in order to finish the "piddle damming" work which was found necessary before the water could be pumped out of the coffer dam. Night shifts have been put to work and about thirty men are being employed at the present time in working on the dam and laying the sheeting preparatory to the removing of the water.

Because of the depth of the stream at this point and the swift current, it was found necessary to lay extra sheeting around the coffer dam and fill the space between with sand. A large holler has been employed to furnish power to operate a powerful pump which brings the sand up from the bottom of the stream and deposits it in the coffer dam. This process of piddle damming is consuming much valuable time and Superintendent Burgett is in hopes that more favorable conditions will be met with on the other two dams.

Because trouble has been encountered in getting the proper sand from the bed of the river, as only a limited amount of the right material is procurable. When the work of water-proofing the coffer dam is completed the work will be concentrated on building the cement piers to the top of the bridge.

ALIEN LAW PROTEST SUBMITTED TO BRYAN

Japan's Formal Protest Against Alien Law Will Be Placed Before Wilson.—Bryan Remains Quiet.

Washington, May 9.—Japan's formal protest against the California alien land bill was submitted to Secretary Bryan at the state department early today by Vincent Chinda in person. The protest will be placed before President Wilson and the cabinet by Secretary Bryan this afternoon that an answer may be promptly returned to the Japanese embassy.

Has No Statement.

At noon Secretary Bryan left the cabinet. "I have no statement to make at this time."

Shortly afterward Secretary Bryan was asked by a reporter to meet at the state department, but their conference was necessarily short. The secretary had to take the 12:30 train for New York, where he is to deliver an address tonight at a banquet.

Mr. Bryan said the conference with the ambassador would be resumed tomorrow upon his own return from New York.

No Answer Ready.

This was taken as an indication that the state department was not yet prepared even after the brief consideration in the cabinet to make a final answer to the Japanese objections as presented today by the ambassador.

Other members of the cabinet refused without exception to discuss the situation, further than to say the general subject had been gone over.

Sport Snap Shots

by Dan McCarty

George Stovall hooked onto a coming pitcher when he put Baumgardner's name on his recruit books. The tall Missourian got a bad start but he has been going fine lately.

After the beating he got from Trainer Simmons a month ago, one would think that Manager Johnny Evers of the Chicago Cubs would be a bit careful of what he said to his leading medicine man. But Johnny is into the new trainer—Dr. Axel Hart—last week in one of his fiery fits. Hart, however, proved too much for the mid get manager, his repartee carrying a deeper sting to it. Evers may soon decide it is bad business to monkey with trainers.

The critics have been boosting Ray Schalk of the White Sox, and Henry and Ainsworth of the Nationals, but Joe Birmingham of Cleveland thinks he has the finest little catcher in the league in Fred Carisch, the A. A. importation.

Butte, Montana, is the boxer's paradise. Jimmy Duffy of Lockport, N. Y., and Ray Temple of Milwaukee played to a $3000 house here last week. The boxing lid has been on in Montana ever since. Stanley Kerchel issues therefrom. But now it is legalized and the miners will pay well to see the mittmen in action.

The same as last year, Huel Redient of the Falconer (N. Y.) pitcher is winning games for the Boston Red Sox. Redient helped keep the champions in the running in 1912 and then he came back and outpitched Matthewson in the world's series. With Joe Wood incapacitated, Redient is the only winning flinger Boston possesses this spring.

Mathewson says his long and successful career is due to a "conservation of natural resources." When Matty first went to New York he had wonderful speed and used it all the time. So anxious was his manager to win games that he made his young hurler work when his arm was very sore. Seeing that if he did not protect his arm nobody else would, Matty began to think. He developed a slow ball and found it was just as effective as speed. It saved his arm which would have been burned up long ere this had he continued to put everything he had on the ball.

With Duffy Lewis out of the game with a sustained ankle, the Boston Red Sox are sorely handicapped. Lewis' injury leaves the team with only three active veterans—Gardner, Speaker and Hooper. Stahl, Yerkes and Wagner of the champion infield, and Joe Wood, champion pitcher are on the bench.

Joe Rivers, the coast lightweight, was offered a match with Jack Britton last week. Britton, offering to make 133 pounds at ringside, but Rivers passed up the match. Britton, who has been winning with great consistency for months, is considered too tough for the Mexican.

Neither the Red Sox nor the Athletics are playing up to the form that won them the world's championships. Mack's pitchers are not to be depended upon. Stahl's men are crippled.

GREAT TURF EVENT OF YEAR TOMORROW

Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Will Mark Opening of Spring Meeting of Louisville Jockey Club.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Louisville, Ky., May 9.—The greatest turf event of the year, and the richest Kentucky Derby ever contested, the thirty-ninth running of this event, at a mile and a quarter for the cream of the three-year-olds of America, will take place at Churchill Downs tomorrow, marking the opening of the spring meeting of the Louisville Jockey Club.

Hitherto, the richest Derby was that of 1890, won by Riley and worth to the winner $5,460. This year the event will be richer even than in the year that the son of Longfellow led his field home. The pick of the three-year-olds are entered in the event, but Hawthorne, the most phenomenal horse of the year, continues a decided favorite in the betting.

There are thirteen days' racing scheduled, and with the fastest horses in America now quartered in the stables, the track in excellent condition and a substantial purse promised for each day, the management expects one of the best meetings in recent years.

Fights Scheduled for Tonight. "One Round" Davis vs. "Soldier" Kearns, 10 rounds, at Buffalo.

Mike Sheridan vs. Danny Goodman, 10 rounds, at Terre Haute, Ind.

The game is sure to be a good one, and many students are planning to go down with the squad. Connell is in fine condition and will do the slub work for the locals. Butler will again do the receiving with fishing on first base. The outfield has been changed a little. Souham may play in one of these positions, owing to the extreme weakness of this spot last week. The locals are not fearing defeat, and they are going down to Beloit with a grim determination to win. Practice was not indulged in last night owing to the rainy weather. Connell was effective Wednesday afternoon and is confident of holding the Line City swatters to a few scattered hits.

HIGH SCHOOL ADJOURNED TO MEET FAIR COMMITTEE

On the assembling of the high school this morning, Assistant Principal Roethli announced to the students that they would be excused to attend the annual of the State Fair committee. At nine o'clock the student body was dismissed and they formed a part of the huge crowd that gathered at the Northwestern station to welcome the members of the committee.

The large body of students, combined with the crowd of citizens, formed an impressive gathering that could not have helped but showed the committee that the Janesville had the true booster spirit. Prof. Roethli instructed the members of the high school to return to their studies after the address of welcome.

Spiders, like worms and snakes, were formerly much used in charm cures, and only a year or two since an English shopkeeper was startled by a request for "a nut to put a spider in to cure baby's whooping cough." The spider, according to an old-time prescription, was to be inclosed in a nut and suspended round the child's neck, the idea being that as the insect died the disease disappeared.

THE TARIFF.

The democratic steering committee in the lower house of congress have successfully carried out their program of passing the tariff measure in its practical entirety. They have refused to listen to the appeal of thousands of industries that will be affected and have sent the bill to the senate for them to decide vital questions. Underwood, if he failed at nomination for president at the Baltimore convention, has demonstrated that he is the real leader of democracy in Washington and he has carried things off with a high hand just to show the people that the democrats mean to rule or ruin. Now it is up to the senate and if the bill is amended when it comes before the committee of that august body, they can not be blamed.

JANESVILLE'S ADVANTAGES.

Janesville today demonstrated what enthusiasm can do. The reception of the visiting legislative committee was most enthusiastic and it would appear as though the gentlemen must have been impressed most favorably. Janesville is a mighty good city to live in and talk about. There are lots of advantages that it has to offer that other communities lack, and if the citizens once awakened to the real facts and talk about them sufficiently the city will take the place it deserves in Wisconsin municipalities. Boost Janesville on every opportunity. Talk about Janesville every chance you can and see the results. Today was boosters' day in truth, but make every day boosters' day as far as you are personally concerned, and the results will be surprising. We now have the Twenty-five Thousand club fully organized, a Commercial club and many other civic clubs all working for the same end—a bigger Janesville—and it is up to each individual to help.

TO BE GREEK AGAIN.

The taking of Janina by the Greeks, assisted by Servian artillery and probably by Servian troops, was not only a heavy blow to what is left of the Turkish power in Europe, but it is important for other reasons. It places the old kingdom of Epirus, or the name for part of that famous fighting ground, in the hands of the Greeks with whom it was long united by strong ties of association and national interests. And it reminds the world once more, how close to Italy and Austria lie some of the wildest and least European parts of Europe.

Just across the strait of Otranto, at the southern end of the Adriatic Sea, the Turkish province of Janina has been fanatically Moslem, in the main, and utterly alien to the country facing it westward. In Janina, the Sultan's tyrants have ruled under the banner of the world drift past almost unnoticed except when it led to wars or afforded an excuse for new oppression or massacres. Janina, as a district of Turkey, has been as hostile to Italy in feeling and as foreign in every respect as Epirus was to Rome when Pyrrhus won his brilliant victories over the Roman legions only to shatter his armies and his power, in the end, against their stubborn courage and the great recuperative force of their country.

Now Epirus will become Greek again and a new era will begin for its people, of all races and creeds. They will pass under a civilized and enlightened government for the first time in centuries.

THE LAND OF PATENTS.

In striving to impress upon congress the necessity for caution in altering the patent laws of the nation, numerous inventors, manufacturers and other business men have brought before the country remarkable facts pertaining to the effect of patented inventions upon the progress of the American people. They have set forth, in the most striking manner, the immense scope and importance of the discoveries which are recorded in the patent office and protected by the patent laws.

It appears that the patents issued in this country every year are nearly equal to the total number granted in Great Britain, Germany and France taken together. The same proportion holds good in respect to the whole number of patents which have been issued in the United States and in the three great European countries named. It is not far from being an even balance between America and these rivals combined. Nearly 1,100,000 patents have been issued at Washington, and the yearly output is close to 40,000.

Of course, the great majority of inventions covered by this enormous activity of the patent office are of little or no practical importance, but those which count most have played a leading part in the progress of the nation and the world. Many have been vital factors in the development of industrial civilization and the advance of mankind. As evidence of the powers and fertility of Yankee brains the records of the patent office are impressive in the highest degree, and the nations which have been given to the world in this country are rightly a source of great pride to its people.

A NEW VERSION.

Over at the court house the other day a lot of new American citizens were being sworn in by the clerk. One of them, a tall son of Norway, had answered the simple questions asked as to who was the governor of the state and so forth, and when the question was propounded, "Who makes the laws down in Washington," answered equally glibly, "the trustees." In view of Mr. Underwood's successful fight for his tariff bill it would appear that the answer was incorrect, but still it is a good one to relate anyway.

DANDELION DAY.

University authorities have suggested a new holiday for the state in the shape of "Dandelion day." The arguments of "swat the fly" and other similar arguments in favor of cleaning up yards, alleys and vacant lots, all appeal to the public as a whole and perhaps the idea of a Dandelion day where everyone should seek to exterminate these yellow pests might find firm ground to stand on should it be adopted.

"Do it now!" is the slogan found in many lines of business and it would not hurt to adopt it to local conditions and clean up now and stay clean. There is nothing that appeals to the eye and sensibility so much as neat yards and streets.

The arguments about rebuilding on the Milwaukee street bridge have been discussed freely, but it would seem a good thing first to clear out the rubbish from the river itself before talking seriously about the other problem.

Heart to Heart Talks

WHY DON'T YOU?

Draw up your chair and let's talk things over a bit.

Well, why don't you?

Everything is ready to your hand.

Civilization has given you every agency.

You have the greatest facilities for gaining knowledge, for self improvement, for getting on in the world.

Why don't you?

Pardon this frank talk. In the really serious and important things of life we must be frank.

The world is calling for men such as you want to be. It needs them vitally, needs them now. It has a place for you when you have measured up to your ideal.

Why don't you?

Perhaps the trouble is that you want it only for self. You want it for what you can get and not for what you can give.

That is a fatal handicap. You will never get on in that way.

The world is not hunting people up to put laurel wreaths on their brows. It is hunting for men to give it what it wants and needs.

After you have produced this it will then be time to talk about laurels.

You want distinction. Well, the way to get distinction is to do something distinctive.

Why don't you?

You want wealth.

The way to gain wealth is to render an equivalent service.

You say old Scruggs did not get his wealth that way. Perhaps you do not know, but are only taking idle gossip and spiteful criticism. Perhaps you do him an injustice.

But if you are right about him then you do not want his wealth after all. You are not the sort of man who wishes to gain things in that way. Now, are you?

You must have greater faith in yourself, greater concentration, more purpose and energy.

Get right down to cases and find what you can do, then do it.

Organize your inward forces. Get rid of the vanities and unnecessary impediments. Be what you aspire to be.

Why don't you?

Inspiration.

Wherever man has done well in the arts, the vision of some inspiring woman is behind his work. . . famous and lovely women, long dead, whose kisses are imperishable in tone or pigment or tale; women who called to themselves for a little space the big-souled men of their time, and sent the away illustrious.—Will Levington Comfort.

BANK EXCHANGES MAINTAIN VOLUME THROUGHOUT WEEK

New York, May 9.—Dun's review tomorrow will say: "Bank exchanges this week are in fairly well maintained volume, the total at all leading cities in the United States aggregating $3,966,634,475, and showing a loss of 1 per cent as compared with the same week last year."

Oldtime Perfumes.

Perfumes were in common use in the ancient world, but views have changed as to the pleasantness of various odors. The smell of aloes is now considered disagreeable by the majority of people, but in the old days aloes, both as solid extract and as wood, formed a staple perfume or aromatic. Saffron, moreover, was a most popular perfume with the Romans, and was much in favor in England until about the sixteenth century.

Practical Boy.

Little Harold, aged five years, was visiting his aunt. While at dinner the grown-ups were talking and paying little or no attention to little Harold. He was ready and waiting for his dessert, and to attract the others' attention he said: "Please, Aunt Mame, is that pie an ornament?"

History of the Key.
The key was one of the first things invented by man. The primitive key was probably a thorn or splinter. Afterward fish bones seem to have come into use. Wooden pegs followed these. In modern times the process of manufacturing keys is very highly developed. Fifty years ago there were only some hundred varieties of keys, each having its special name and distinct use. Today they are legion.—Harper's Weekly.

PUPIL DROPS DEAD ON RUNNING TRACK AT BLIND SCHOOL

Lyle Gibson of La Crosse Victim of Heart Failure—Funeral Was Held This Morning.

Without the least warning or indication of illness or exhaustion, Lyle Gibson, a fifteen year old pupil at the State Institute for the Blind, dropped dead on the running track of the school yesterday afternoon, almost at the feet of Superintendent J. T. Hooper, who was close behind him. The first thought of Mr. Hooper was that the lad had stumbled and fell, but a glance at his face showed that he was unconscious, and no time was lost in carrying him off the track, sending for physicians, and in applying methods of resuscitation. Dr. E. F. Woods and F. B. Farnsworth both responded to calls and on their arrival pronounced the boy dead as the result of heart failure. It was their belief that he was dead when he fell. Gibson had not been exerting himself noticeably before his sudden death. He was not training to make any record time but was merely warming up for a sixty yard dash. He had his gymnasium suit on at the time but was not in regular practice. After running eighty-five yards he stopped, crowd, near toward the Superintendent Hooper, who was just ten yards to the rear and dropped immediately in front of him.

The unfortunate boy had been at the institute for only a year. He was but partially blind, very bright, and one of the most promising pupils. He showed promise of accomplishment as a student of music and had been taking piano lessons for some time. Lyle was popular with his fellow pupils and teachers and had not been ill since coming to the institution.

The father of Gibson was promptly notified of his death by Superintendent Hooper and arrangements made for his funeral which was held this morning. Services were conducted by the Rev. T. D. Williams of the Methodist church and six pupils served as pall bearers. They were Elmer Meyer, Thomas Buehlerworth, Danis Willis, Edward Rausch, Albin Graykowski and Philip Hudson. The remains were taken to La Crosse for burial on the train leaving this city at 10:40 o'clock this morning. Principal Buck and Miss Turner of the institute faculty accompanied the body.

ENTIRE FLOCK OF CHICKS WERE STOLEN LAST NIGHT

A complaint from the home of Will Chast, corner of Glen and Garfield avenues, to the effect that an entire flock of thirty-nine chicks had been stolen last night, was reported to the police station this morning. The loss is a considerable item as the chicks were of pure Rhode Island Red stock and were three weeks old.

Positively Not.
The reformed burglar, upon his release from jail, was inclined to be a bit facetious. "Simply state," he remarked to a reporter who chanced to be in the vicinity, "that under no circumstances will I be a candidate for another term." Proving that burglars, as well as comedy actors, have a sense of humor.—Judge.

The Better Method.
"Do man dat tries to please everybody," said Uncle Eben, "ah't gine to git along nigh so well as de man who squares up to de world an' gits everybody tryin' to please him."

EDGERTON SUFFERS $1,000 FIRE LOSS

Blaze Starting in Rossebo Apartment in Hausman Block Threatens Nearby Property.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, May 9.—At 8.45 last evening the fire company was called to the Hausman block where Barrett's saloon is located. A serious blaze had started in the apartments of Louis Rossebo on the second floor. The fire company responded immediately and in a few minutes the fire was under control. The blaze was extinguished entirely at about half past nine.

The fire proved to have been started in a room close to some unknown source. Two living rooms were badly damaged and are a total wreck. The entire loss is estimated at about one thousand dollars, which is covered by insurance. The fire did no damage to the stock on saloon of Wm. Barrett, but the water that was put on the fire overhead caused considerable damage, as it came through the ceiling. Silent damage was done to the stock of F. J. Dickerson's grocery, and to the apartment of Ferd Kepp over the grocery.

This was considered a lucky fire as it had received much more of a start. It could have gotten beyond control and nearby property would have been threatened.

HATFIELD DISASTER SHOWS NEED OF LAW

Speaker Hull Cites Concrete Case in Argument for Bill Imposing Double Liability on Power Corporations.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 9.—Speaker Merlino Hull expressed his opinion of the waterpower corporation whose dam went out and ruined the city of Black River Falls in talking the senate corporation committee of the merits of a bill he has fathered through the assembly. The bill imposes a double liability on stockholders in the event of their breakage and damage to property. Not only is the corporation responsible, but each stockholder is liable to the full value of his holdings, thus affording a double liability.

"When the company owning the Hatfield dam left the floodgates up to reserve enough water to run their wheels over winter and pile up their dollars, it was solely responsible for letting the flood come down into our city and the valley," declared the speaker. "The company had gone far in the hands of a receiver and the citizens whose entire holdings had been swept away found no avenue of redress. We were absolutely without recourse. At foreclosure, the company, which was an $8,000,000 concern, was sold for $500,000, and it is now back in the hands of the same men. They have escaped all liability to the public going ahead with this evasion of the moral law by legal process, feeling wholly irresponsible to the people they have ruined. I suppose their representatives will tell you today that if you pass this bill you will block all waterpower development for many years. The object of this bill is to place all responsibility where it belongs—on the owners of these dams. At present we are at the mercy of the corporation at Hatfield and the whole La Crosse valley is threatened by this horrible monster. I trust that the state of Wisconsin will no longer permit men to hide behind the bankruptcy laws to escape their responsibility to the public."

Defends Present System.

Edwin S. Mack, representing the Wisconsin Public Service company and the Wisconsin Railway, Light and Power company (the latter the successors of the La Crosse Waterways company), said that the bonds invested in the dams represent the earnings of many small stockholders. The principle of corporate liability, he said, is sometimes rigidly enforced and that "harsh cases make bad law." The ultimate financial results should be considered before passing such a law, he said. He argued that the present policy has worked well, and any remedy that might be needed he suggested, would be to require that companies have adequate capital to provide for inspection of waterpower works. He said no reason why the state should not provide laws for such inspection. The bill for the Black River Falls disaster he attributed to the municipal dam rather than to the dam above. Asked why a double liability on stockholders was justified, Mr. Mack stated that the banks fill a different role in that they solicit credit from the public and are under the protection and supervision of the government of states in a way that private corporations are not.

John E. Sautborn, appearing for the St. Croix Falls Improvement company, also discussed the bill from the standpoint of the waterpower interests.

Gamblers' Superstitions.

Gamblers are generally superstitious with regard to numbers. At Monte Carlo many players lay their stake on the number of their cloak room tickets. The date of a birthday, the sum total of the number on a watch, and the figures on the top coin of a pile are also said to be considered lucky by many players, and the clergyman of the English church at Monte Carlo at one time never gave out any hymn under number 55, as he discovered that some of his congregation had made a practice of noting down the numbers with a view of backing them at roulette.

Their Destination Uncertain.

She was hurriedly adjusting her veil, and had but a few moments in which to catch her ear. "Oh, dear," she murmured, "I can't find a pin anywhere. I wonder where all the pins go to, anyway? That's a difficult question to answer," replied her practical husband, who was standing by. "Because they are always pointed in one direction and headed in another."

Going Down.

"This high cost of living problem is getting to be something terrible," observed Mrs. Nutley. "Everything is getting higher." "Oh, I don't know," replied her husband, soothingly. "There's your opinion of me, for instance, and my opinion of you, and our mutual opinion of our neighbors, and the neighbors' opinion of both of us."

Awakening.

"You're looking mighty sour; what's the matter? Honey-moon over?" "I guess so," "How'd that happen?" "Oh, we were drifting along down life's enchanted stream, like the poet tells about, and just as I was thinking I should like to drift on and on with her forever, she-up and told me that she has got to have some money."—Houston Post.

The Word of Life

By REV. H. W. POPE,
Superintendent of Men,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"Holding forth the word of life."
PHIL. 1:14.

In writing to the church at Philippi which he had just founded, Paul urges upon them two things: First: That they be blameless and harmless, or in other words, that they live a consistent Christian life. Secondly: That they form the habit of holding forth the word of life to others. Paul then goes on to say that if these Philippi church members were satisfied simply to set a consistent example, and did not also engage in personal effort to help the unsaved, he should consider his labor upon these as well nigh lost. The ease with which one can do this work, and the blessing which usually accompanies it, makes it almost inexcusable for us to neglect it.

On one occasion I handed a little card to a man asking if he would like something to read. On it he saw the word Christian, and at once he said with a sneer, "Christian, yes, I have neighbors who are Christians, and I have some who are not, and the latter are more neighborly and more honorable in business every time." "That may be," I said, "but remember that it is not their religion which makes your neighbors mean and dishonorable, but the lack of it, and it is not fair to blame Jesus Christ for what does not belong to him."

Then I added, "It may be that you do not feel the need of a Savior now, but the time will surely come when you will feel it."

"I guess I need him enough now. My wife died about a year ago, and since then I have lost my daughter. My home is broken up and I haven't anything left to live for."

The man's voice trembled, and the tears began to come. I saw that I had touched a tender chord, and I said, "My friend, if there is any one on this earth that needs Jesus Christ, I think you are the man." Then I held up Christ as a comforter and told him how willing Christ was to come into his sad heart and make it glad, and into his desolate home and make it bright with heavenly hopes. Then, taking it for granted that he did not know how to find Christ, I went on to explain the way of salvation. Then I said, "Now my friend, with this understanding of what it is to become a Christian, are you willing to accept Christ as your Savior right here and now, and give me your hand on it?" "Yes sir, I am," he replied, and he grasped my hand heartily. Then we removed our hats, and I prayed, and he prayed, after which he gave me his name and told me all about himself. This was at a county fair in the midst of noise and confusion. Horses were racing, fairs were shouting and the merry-go-round was in full blast. And yet in the midst of that surging crowd this man with bared head was confessing his sins to God and inviting Jesus Christ to come into his heart.

It is a great aid in opening conversation with strangers to have with you a variety of leaflets or gospel cards. You can hand one to a person saying, "Would you like something to read?" If he does not express an opinion, you can give him another, saying, "This one is a little different," or "Here is one which I think you will enjoy." By this means you gradually become acquainted, and by and by you can give him one which presents the way of salvation plainly, and ask him if he has accepted Christ as his Savior.

Sitting in a hotel in Denver I was reading a newspaper. By my side sat a young man talking with two others. Soon he uttered an oath. Taking out a little card entitled, "Why Do You Swear?" I laid it down on the arm of the chair between us, and went on reading. He picked it up and read it. As soon as his companions left he said to me, "My friend, that is the best thing on swearing I ever saw. It is an awful habit I know and I ought not to do it, but you see I am a newspaper man on the Chicago Inter Ocean. I am thrown in with a rough crowd and I cannot seem to overcome the habit." He then went on to tell me about himself and we had a long heart to heart talk. Remember he began the conversation, and he did most of the talking.

When we have ascertained one's real position, the next thing is to lead him to accept Christ. The main object is not to lead people to give up their bad habits, or to attend church, or even to join the church, but rather to accept Christ as their personal Lord and Master. We should then show them from God's word that they have forgiveness of sins and eternal life (Acts 10:43; John 3:36).

They should also be instructed in the duties of the Christian life, especially the duty of confessing Christ publicly, and the habit of daily prayer and Bible reading.

Guy Eddie and Mrs. John Phelps.

That Guy Eddie, the deposed Los Angeles prosecutor who is being tried on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Mrs. John Phelps aged 20, made love to her within five minutes after the first meeting, was the testimony of Mrs. Phelps at the trial a few days ago.

The story which she told on the stand was that Eddie got her into his private office on the pretext that he wished to appoint her as a detective, and then made love with her. Eddie was arrested by officers who battered down the bolted door to his private office when he was alone with the young woman.

Mrs. Phelps has been called "the Evelyn Thaw of California." She was married in Milwaukee last July, and a month later parted with her husband, going to Los Angeles. She met Eddie shortly after her arrival there.

WHITE SLAVE PROBE ASSURED FOR STATE

Assembly Concurs in Linley Bill Which Allows $10,000 for Committee to Investigate Traffic in Wisconsin.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 9.—A state investigation of the white slave traffic and kindred subjects in Wisconsin became assured by the action of the assembly last night in concurring in the Linley bill. The vote was 67 to 13, those negating the proposal viewing it as impossible of achieving an effectual remedy for the evils complained of.

The feature of the debate, which opened the evening session, was Assemblyman Carl Hansen's vigorous denunciation of such measures as "freak legislation." He gave Senator Linley credit for sponsoring numerous other legislative proposals, by which Linley sought more wholesome, moral and civil conditions in Wisconsin, most of which had not survived. He declared the sum of $10,000 with which the white slave commission is to be financed would be "thrown away."

Spoor Makes Defense.
"All the laws you will ever put on the statute books will never change human nature," said Hansen. "Providence has taken care of that." Assemblyman Spoor was on his feet promptly in defense of the bill.

"This committee is going to see that the white slave traffic is driven out of Wisconsin; if it is possible to do so," he said, "it is going to make a fight to safeguard the pure womanhood of our state from the pitfalls that threaten it on every hand. God keep us from degenerating any farther."

Assemblyman Hansen's stand on excise and kindred legislation was attacked by a fellow member of the excise committee, and Hansen replied with characteristic animation and openness of mind.

Fears the Publicity.
Don C. Hall deplored the tone the discussion had taken, but when dollars and cents were involved in a matter of this kind he was for spending the money if by that means the traffic in womanhood might be partially or wholly wiped out.

Assemblyman Eatabrook said he would vote against the bill because in his opinion the investigation and the attendant salacious stories furnished the newspapers would have a harmful effect upon young men.

In Assemblyman Minkley's opinion, this was a social question which should not stop at an investigation of poor, unfortunate girls, as he said, but should extend to the men, high and low, and the sons of their rich whose money is used to debauch the innocent. Mr. Minkley took advantage of the opportunity to chide Police Chief Janssen of Milwaukee for alleged faults of the omission in riding his city of vice.

Investigate Owners.
"And I am glad this commission can investigate the owners of houses of prostitution," he added. "We may find that some of these goody, goody persons in Milwaukee who are crying out for a cleaner city, and all that, will themselves be thrown in the net as owners of buildings where the traffic is carried on. I hope the state of Wisconsin will go the limit in showing up this class of people as well as the fiends who live on the internal traffic."

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP GIRL FRUSTRATED BY POLICEMAN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, May 9.—A daring attempt by three Italians to kidnap Viola Shifano, a twenty-year-old Italian girl, in a taxi-cab was frustrated today by the desperate struggles of the girl to escape.

The girl was struggling and screaming and at Orleans street succeeded in smashing the window of the taxi-cab, attracting the attention of four policemen.

Antonio Moola, one of the abductors, the scratches on whose face bore evidence of the resistance of the girl, was arrested, but his two companions escaped after running three blocks under a storm of bullets from the police.

It Certainly Was Embarrassing

to David Kerr, boss of Belmont, when his charming, motherless daughter Gloria unexpectedly returned from school and a European trip, which, combined, had kept her away from home for many years and deprived her of all knowledge of the occupation of her father, whom she supposed to be a real estate operator, high in society. But that was but the beginning of her embarrassments. Kerr was a typical boss of the most brutal type, far removed from "society," determined to use his power to make a place for Gloria. Gloria's bitter awakening to the truth, her falling in love with a young editor who opposes her father, and many other incidents make up a drama of absorbing interest and power. a Resident of Milton, Revered by Host of Friends.

Milton, May 9.—On the 8th of May, 1822, ninety years ago yesterday, James McEwan, Milton's oldest inhabitant and oldest settler, was born in the village of Comrie, Perthshire, Scotland. He is the grand old man of Milton, having arrived here on September 20th, 1832, seventy-five years ago.

Mr. McEwan came to this country a boy of fifteen with his mother and four sisters, and a brother arriving in New York after a voyage of the Lady of the Lake which occupied from Scotland to America, seven weeks and four days. The family journeyed from New York by rail, and the Great Lakes to Milwaukee, where they were met by Mr. McEwan's brother, Peter, who took them in an ox wagon to Milton over a road which was in some parts a corduroy road made of felled trees.

Mr. McEwan was a carpenter by trade, but he purchased 160 acres in Milton from his brother, Peter, and has been engaged in agricultural pursuits since then, with the exception of thirteen years, which were spent in running a merchandise store in the village.

He has taken a keen interest in the development of the village and in its educational advancement, and has held several offices of trust. He has crossed the ocean several times, first returning in 1861, when he brought back with him a Scotch lassie, Elizabeth McEwan, his wife. One daughter, Mary Beatrice, now the wife of William G. Alexander of Lima, was born of this marriage. She graduated from Milton College in 1885.

Mr. McEwan's wife died in 1878, and in 1881 he again married, his second wife who came from Shetland, Margaret Young, died a year ago and since that time Mr. McEwan's son-in-law and daughter have made their home in Milton with him.

Mr. McEwan is an adherent of the Congregational church of Milton, to which he has liberally subscribed, and the old gentleman is still interested in the welfare of the church and village.

He is wonderfully active, has a keen strong mind, an independence of character that is essentially Scotch, and his great frame and strong face show little sign of his great age.

Many friends over the country extend congratulations to Mr. McEwan, who is a favorite with all, and his wise counsel and genial manner and kindly disposition make him beloved by all who have the honor of his acquaintance.

SATURDAY LAST DAY TO ENTER CONTEST

Last Chance to Get Into Gazette's
Corn Growing Competition Is Now at Hand.

Tomorrow is the last chance that Rock county boys will have to enter the Gazette's corn growing contest. Entries will close tomorrow night and no other names will be listed after that time. Even if you have waited until the last minute to get into the game the opportunity is equal with the boy who was among the first to decide.

The number entered in the contest is in every way satisfactory to the contest editor and indicates that there is a growing interest in methods calculated to better and improve agricultural conditions. Work has only begun for the contestants, however, and it will be necessary for them to apply themselves from the beginning in order to get the results which are expected.

The first work required has already been done by the contestants in nearly every instance. The fertilizer has been applied, the disc harrow has been used where its use was advisable, and in many cases the ground has been plowed. Most of the contestants have also provided themselves with seed, either Golden Glow (Wisconsin No. 12) or Silver King (Wisconsin No. 7). In case that you haven't secured your seed remember that you can get it at the Gazette office, guaranteed to be pure bred and of high germinating quality. You are at liberty, however, to procure it from any other source, provided, however, that it is of one of the varieties mentioned. The better the seed, the better the crop, is something to keep in mind.

While it is yet early to think of planting it, it will be a good plan to put some extra touches on the ground in way of preparation. The fertilizer will have something important to say in regard to the planting and other matters in his next article.

THE NEW LID.

The New Lid.

Farewell, old black slouch hat, farewell.

The parting brings its tears.

We've gazed upon your battered shape

For many, many years.

When battles have raged fiercest,

you

Have been right at the front.

Upon a doughty warrior's head.

Forget you? No, we won't.

Dear to the proletariat!

In all these years you've grown;

You've cheered the common people

While fighting for their own.

You've humbled wealth and sordid grat.

You've met defeat three times;

You've figured daily many years,

In gay cartoon and rhymes.

Farewell, old black slouch hat, farewell.

For four years you'll be hid;

For William Jennings Bryan has

A stylish new silk lid.

Dead Easy.

It is a cinch to operate an automobile. All a man has got to do is to.

See that he has enough gasoline in the tank, water in the radiator and oil in the can.

Keep the Prestolite tank and the side and tail lights lit.

Full up at the right side of the street, stop his engine, get out, run around the car, open the door, put his wife in, shut the door, run around the car, get in the front seat, start the engine and proceed.

Keep your eye on the speedometer, another on the traffic officer, another on the motorcoops, another on the oil drip, another on the air supply, another on the children on the sidewalk who are apt to run into the street at any moment, another on the tires, another on the throttle, another on the emergency brake and still another on the road ahead.

Converse pleasantly with his passenger, put the Darwinian theory of Maerlinck's latest play and keep his mind on the engine carburetor.

Choke back profanity under the most exasperating circumstances, explain every noise made by his engine.

Listen to advice from every passenger and hear the tales of automobile wrecks in which they have figured.

Use the diplomacy and tact of a

Chesterfield and the navigation

proveness of a Chicago river tugboat captain and dodge milk wagons, bicycles, moving vans, laundry wagons, pedestrians, baby cabs, steam rollers, bricks, tacks, glass bottles, tin cans, street cars, rats, sand piles, and dogs. Anything happens through a combination of circumstances which could not be prevented by any power beneath the sun, natural or super-natural, through his own fault or the fault of any one else within the radius of a half-mile, the automobile driver is to blame.

Save.

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel.

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10 and 25 cents per box.

CHAPTER XVIII. In Old St. Genevieve.

ON a certain day late in the winter Hector Fournier was among those who waited for the boat to land at St. Genevieve. He was much surprised when he saw coming from the gangplank and beckoning to him a distinguished and handsomely clad lady. For an instant, abashed, he could find no speech—then suddenly he jerked off his cap and stood smiling.

"It is madame," he exclaimed.

"Yes," rejoined Josephine St. Auban, "it is I. And I am glad to see St. Genevieve again, and you, M. Hector."

Tell me—about that infant, that baby of ours?"

It was a proud and happy Jeanne who greeted her former mistress at the little cottage with the green blinds and the ivy, which lay close upon the street of St. Genevieve—Jeanne, perhaps, a trifle more fleshy, a shade more wench and a touch less Parisian in look, more matronly and maternal, yet after all, Jeanne, her former maid. The first coherent speech, as in the case of Hector, was regarding this most extraordinary infant, whose arrival seemed to be this far regarded as a matter of national importance. In this view also shared Mme. Fournier, the elder, mother of Hector, who also presently welcomed the newcomer to the home.

A strange feeling of relief, of rest and calm, came over Josephine St. Auban, a lady of rank in another world, where an incident such as this could not have been conceived. Here it seemed not only possible, but inevitable. The first babble of congratulations and greetings over, she settled down to the quiet of the room assigned to her and gave a sign as of one who at last finds harborage. If only this might go on forever! If only the street might always be this silent, the roof thus sheltering the greetings of simple friends thus comforting! She made no plans for herself, no announcement to others of possible plans. It was enough to remain thus, for a night at least. She was very weary, body and soul.

"We are not rich, Mme. Countess," said Hector the next morning at the breakfast table, "but my faith, it is not so bad here. We have not much to offer madame, but such as it is, it is quite hers."

"I could willingly tarry with you always, Hector," said she, "if that were right."

"Right?" demanded Hector, swelling out his chest. "Why is it not right? He doubled up a mighty arm to show where the muscles rose upon it. "See, I am strong. What is one more mouth to feed? Could it even come to that for one of madame's wealth? Madame but jests. Did not madame bring me that Jeanne there? Ah, if only it were right for her to linger with us how happy we should be!"

The sturdy speech of the fresh looking, good hearted fellow touched the heart of a woman so world weary. For a time she said nothing of plans, even to herself. It was not long before the baby of Jeanne found a place upon her knee, and Jeanne herself, though jealous, was willing to surrender her dearest rights, at least for a time.

But always the eyes of this world weary woman were lifted up to the hills. She found herself gazing out beyond the street of St. Genevieve toward the Ozarks, where once she had traveled—true, against her will, but yet through scenes which she now remembered.

"Madame remembers that man yonder, that savage, Dunwoody?" began Jeanne one day apropos of nothing—"that savage most execrable, who was so unkind to madame and myself, but who made love, so fiercely? He has at last, thank heavens, come to justice. Is it not true that human beings find ever their deserts?"

"What do you mean, Jeanne?"

"Yes, I have come, Hector," said

"Of the congress of this state, where he is so long a member, he is now not a member. He has fallen—he has been defeated."

"I thought he was sure of re-election so long as he chose," commented Josephine, with feigned indifference.

"There is talk—I do not understand these matters—that he has changed his coat, as one says, and gone over to the side of that man Benton. Yet one says that Benton was always his enemy. Me, I do not understand. I have the baby."

"What is that you tell me?" suddenly demanded Josephine. "That Mr. Dunwoody has changed his political beliefs—that he has become Free Soiler?"

Jeanne nodded. "I think it is so name. I know little of such matters, naturally. To me my infant here is of much more importance than any question of free soil."

"Yes, yes, Jeanne! I do not doubt that. But now you were speaking of Mr. Dunwoody?"

"Yes, that is true. I was rejoicing that at last he has been defeated, that he has fallen, that he has met with that fate which should be his. Now he has few friends. It is change against him—well, madame, perhaps it were as well not to repeat all of that."

"I can understand," said Josephine slowly. "I can guess. Yes, I know."

Jeanne nodded. "Yes, they bring up stories that at one time you and I—well, that we were there at Tallwoods. But these wild people, here, who shoot and fight with knives, they are of all peoples in the world the most strict and the most moral, the most abhorrent of what is not their own custom of life. Behold, that droll Mr. Bill Jones, in jest, perhaps, expressed to others his belief that at one time there was a woman concealed about this place of Tallwoods!—Yes! Madame knows with what ground of justice this was said. Very well. The people took it up. There was comment. There was criticism. These charges became public. It was rumored that and so in all the district of Mr. Dunwoody. He has fought the duel—oh, la, la! At the election he was defeated. That has come to him which he has deserved!"

The eyes of Josephine St. Auban flashed with interest over this intelligence. "He has changed his belief, his party! But no, it is not possible that he should come out for our party, our cause, Jeanne—our cause, for the people of the world—for liberty! I wish I might believe it. No, it cannot be true."

"Yet it is true, madame. A turncoat! Bah!"

"No, Jeanne! Not in the least should you feel contempt for a man who honestly changes belief. To turn from error, is not that always wisdom?"

But Jeanne only shrugged her shoulders and laid out her hands for the baby. "It is taught to me," said she. "We are happy here under this roof, are we not?"

"Precisely. We are safe here. That child yonder is safe here. But how long shall we be safe if there are not those to keep this roof protected? The law, Jeanne—the justice, back of the law. Are these things of no interest to you?"

"At least when it comes to roofs," reiterated Jeanne. "M. Dunwoody has pulled down his roof about his ear. If madame should wish to explore the matter for herself that is quite possible. This night, perhaps tomorrow, M. Dunwoody himself comes to St. Genevieve. He is to meet the voters of this place. He wishes to speak, to explain. I may say that even he will have the audacity to come here to advocate the cause of freedom and the restriction of those slaves for which hitherto he has labored so valiantly."

Josephine made no immediate reply. A tall mirror with pretentious golden frame hung opposite to her across the room. A few moments later, with a start, she suddenly pulled herself together, discovering that she had been gazing steadfastly into the glass.

It was late in the sunlit afternoon when there rode into the head of the street of old St. Genevieve a weary and mud stained horseman, who presently dismounted at the hitching rail in front of the little inn which he favored with this company. He was a tall man who, as he turned down the street, walked with just the slightest trace of a limp.

This traveler did not turn into the inn, did not pause indeed at any of the points of greater interest, but sought out the little cooper shop of Hector Fournier. That worthy greeted him, wiping his hands upon his leathern apron.

"It is M. Dunwoody! Come in! Come in! I'll been glad for see you. There was those talk you'll would not come."

"Yes, I have come, Hector," said

Dunwoody, "and naturally I have come to see you first. You are one of the few political allies that I have left. At least if you don't believe the way I do you are generous enough to listen."

"But, monsieur, believe me, the situation here is difficult. I had a list here of twelve citizens of St. Genevieve who were willing to listen to M. Dunwoody tonight in a grand mass meeting, but now talk has gone out. There is much indignation. In fact, it is plain."

"What do you mean? What is going on?" demanded Dunwoody.

"Alas! Monsieur, it is with regret I announce that the majority of our citizens, who so dislike Monsieur Benton and his views, are much in favor of riding upon a rail after due treatment of the tar and the feather, him who lately was their idol; that is to say, yourself, monsieur!"

Dunwoody, his face grim, leaned against the door of the little shop. "We will hold the meeting here just the same. We do not run away! Tonight, in front of the hall there. But why trouble about that? What comes, comes. Now, as to yourself and your mother—and your wife?"

"And those, baby?" exclaimed Hector. "Assuredly monsieur does not forget the finest baby of St. Genevieve?"

"Come, you shall see Josephine St. Auban. Jeanne Marie Fournier—at once!"

Hector was rolling down his sleeves and loosening the strings of his leathern apron. Suddenly he turned.

"But, monsieur," he said, "come, I have news. It is a situation a little difficult, but it cannot be concealed, and what cannot be concealed may best be revealed. Monsieur remembers that lady, the countess?"

"Countess? Whom do you mean?"

"Who but our madame, the Countess St. Auban in her own right? She who gave me my Jeanne—at Tallwoods, monsieur. Have you not known? She is here. She is here now. Of wealth and distinction, yes, she has traveled in this country merely for diversion—ment—but the Countess St. Auban, yes, she passes now with the cooper, Hector Fournier."

"When will she come?" demanded Dunwoody, eagerly.

"But yesterday, upon the boat, without announcement. She is at this very moment at my house yonder, busy with that baby, Josephine St. Auban Jeanne Marie Fournier, named for a countess! But do not turn back! Monsieur himself has not yet seen the baby. Come!"

For one moment Dunwoody paused; then quietly he accompanied Hector, making no comment. He loped just slightly. He was older—yes, and graver.

CHAPTER XIX. The Turncoat.

THE mother of Hector met them even before the gate was opened. Her voice called to the door her daughter Jeanne, who was shaking hands with Dunwoody before he was half way up the walk. The ejaculations of Jeanne attracted yet another ear farther within the house. A moment later Dunwoody saw pass before the door a figure which he recognized, a face which called the blood to his own face. An instant later, forgetting everything, he was at the door, had her hands in his own.

"It is you!" he exclaimed. "How does it happen? It is impossible!"

Her face had more color than for days. "Yes it is unexpected," she said simply, at last. "Everything is unexpected. But of all things possible, this it seems to me is best—to come here, to rest, for a time."

"You are passing through to St. Louis?"

"Perhaps," she said. "My plans for the moment are somewhat unsettled. I stopped off here, as no doubt you know, to serve as godmother to this baby of Jeanne's. It is an important errand."

In some way, a moment later, they found themselves alone in the special apartment reserved for guests of distinction. An awkward moment ensued. Josephine was first to break the silence.

"I was talking with Jeanne this very morning," she said. "She was telling me some story that you have been unfortunate—that there have been—that is to say—political changes."

He said, smiling: "Just to show you the extent of my downfall, I have heard that they are intending to tar and feather me tonight—perhaps to St. Louis."

Dinner Stories

Physically speaking, Ollie James, the senator from Kentucky, weighs close to 300 pounds and in a political sense he tips the scales at 1,500 tons. His last achievement was to give Luther Burbank the plant wizard, a new and difficult job.

Last summer James toured California and one day he lunched with Burbank, who seemed intensely interested in the vast amount of food the big Kentuckian stowed away and his manner of doing the stowing. Immediately after the lunch the scientist made a quick dash back to his experimental station.

"Why are you in such a hurry, Luther?" asked one of the party.

"I want to rush back," he responded seriously, "and see if I can't propagate a square shaped pea that won't roll off Ollie's knife."

A physician tells a story of a philanthropic doctor, in a Pennsylvania coal mining town who presented each household with a nice thermometer and told the people the necessity of maintaining a proper temperature.

While making his rounds one day he observed his thermometer hanging in the room. He inquired of the woman of the house if she had remembered his instructions.

"Indeed, sir, I do," was the response. "I hung the thing right up there and I watch it carefully, to see it does not get too high."

"Good!" exclaimed the doctor. "And what do you do when the thermometer rises above 70 degrees?"

"Why, sir," answered the woman with the air of one faithful to a trust, "when it gets too high I take it down and hang it outside until it cools off."

"WORLD IN CHICAGO" A GREAT EXHIBITION

The Reverend John Reynolds Gives Interesting Account of Missionary Exposition.

The Rev. John Reynolds, superintendent of the Janesville district of the M. E. church, sends an interesting account of his visit to the "World in Chicago" missionary exposition now being held at the Coliseum. It follows:

It was my privilege to spend Wednesday, May 7, at the "World in Chicago," and while your readers have been treated to a generous amount of advertising matter bearing on it, it may not be uninteresting to them to read the impressions of one who has recently seen and heard the sights and sounds of this really wonderful exposition.

A more suitable name could hardly be found, as almost every country on the face of the globe, centrally every land, invaded by modern Christian missionaries, has its corner in the great exhibition.

On good old sister expressed her disappointment in not hearing, because she could not find England, he represented. She had made the round of the colossal building, and found almost every heathen nation represented in some way, and she wondered by Great Britain was not included.

The Coliseum itself has been the scene of all sorts of mammoth gatherings, and now has placed, free of charge, by the proprietors, in the hands of friends of the missionary cause from May 4 until June 7. Certainly its ample roof shelters the most interesting display seen there for a long while. Groups of men and women show you exactly how the native inhabitants of non-Christian lands live. You see them following their daily vocations, dressed in reproductions of native costumes, and surrounded by faithful copies of the scenery and architecture of these far-off countries.

The effect on their lives and habits wrought by the tremendous influence of the medical, educational and social campaigns of the various Christian bodies, is shown in a startling and convincing way. If any of your readers have been led to accept the findings of a recent self-appointed committee on foreign missions, which visited a few missions in the Orient, and declared to the world that missions were a failure, because the missionaries spent their time preaching the damnation of heathenism, let them visit this exposition and learn that every appliance known in Christian lands for the elevation of the race in morals, education, and physical health is being used to save the present generation in heathen countries.

The claim that those interested in foreign missions may learn more in regard to the triumphs of missions in one day by visiting this exposition, than through a whole month's reading, is not exaggerated. No fewer than 500 churches in Chicago, take part in the spectacle, in the Coliseum and the Auditorium, is in the latter and equally well-known building that the oratorio, "Darkness and Light," is being given every afternoon and evening. This is a wonderful religious pageant. Its main theme is the same general theme religious, is at the same time filled with strange, warlike, weird, native melodies from native peoples and strange foreign lands, and the soft lullabies of the Orient.

A well-trained choir of 150 voices, and a large orchestra, support the program. The appalling conditions surrounding the native North American aborigines, the Hawaiians, the millions of India, and the dusky denizens of Africa, are contrasted with the beneficent and peaceful conquests of the Gospel of Christ, over the same lands and peoples.

Every assistance that can be obtained from costumes, music, scenery, electricity to make the impression on the audience vivid and permanent has been utilized by the master hands. The products of the exposition are to be used in religious societies. Every denomination has its rally day. Methodists are urged to be there May 22.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow.

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, painful, steady, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement, if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's Disease, Dropsy, or Diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer, and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for the cure of kidney, bladder troubles, and rheumatism, than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and pores, cleans out the clogged-up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day, for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache or overwork, disagreeable urinary disorders, and you can take it with the utmost confidence that nothing on earth will so quickly cure the worst case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else like it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price, if Croxone should fail in a single case.

EXCELLENT ACTING IN PLAY OF MERIT

"The Blindness of Virtue" Presented by Capable Cast at Myers Theatre Last Evening.

"The Blindness of Virtue" is a play with a purpose, not only to entertain, but to impress through the vehicle of drama, the fact that ignorance is not a safeguard of virtue, but more often the cause of its loss, and that knowledge of the salient facts concerning manhood and womanhood must be imparted to the girl and the boy at the proper time if they are to comprehend their responsibilities and avoid their pitfalls. To write a play that would convey this message, delicately and reverently, but with telling force is very difficult of accomplishment, but it is easily seen that even in the playwright's hand, success in doing as much, his object could not be attained without actors that were sympathetic and highly capable in their respective roles. Cosmo Hamilton, in "The Blindness of Virtue," has written a play that succeeds in fulfilling this purpose, and the Gladstone company, that last night and yesterday afternoon presented it at the Myers theatre, had the requisite talent.

The least affectation would spoil the effectiveness of the part of Miss Pemberton, the innocent Vicar's daughter, but Miss Martha Boucher, who appeared in that role, was entirely free from it and never once lapsed from naturalness and sincerity.

Rodney Ranous fully measured up to the demands of the part of The Rev. Henry Pemberton, Vicar of East Brenton, the whole-souled, clear-headed, and tactful clergyman. Those who remembered him as the priest in "The Divorce Question," felt assured that he would not be found wanting.

Thomas T. Swift, who impersonated "the dope" friend in the same play with remarkable tragic intensity finds in the part of The Hon. Archibald Graham in "The Blindness of Virtue" his talent little less exacting.

Marie Nelson, as Mrs. Pemberton, the Vicar's wife, made a very pleasing impression with her easy manners, refinement, and clearly spoken lines. The Kelly touched the sympathies of the audience in her portrayal of Mary Ann, the victim of poverty and ignorance, and Luella Mortage as Mrs. Lemmings, her mother, was no less strong in her role. Harry Mannings had a mine part in "Fred Collins," but his acting was very good. Camille D'Arcy was popular with the audience as the glibulous English servant "Cookie," intrusive and domineering, but withal likeable.

The play should be seen by every parent and deserved much larger audiences than greeted it here yesterday.

There are no birds in last year's nests this morning with all their young; there are no laughs in last year's jests, however well they're sprung. There is no news in last year's sheet; the things that happened and made us prance on anxious feet, are chestnuts now to men. There is no wheat in VANISHED last year's sheaf, it's T.H.INGS ground and gone to dough; there are no tears in last year's grief, no wails in last year's woe. Some folks are always looking back to things that are no more; they wring their hands and cry aloud for pleasures gone before. They don't admire the birds that sing with ardor in the wood; they say the birds that sang last spring were fifty times as good. They don't enjoy the gentle breeze that rustles to and fro; "we had no Jim crow winds like these," they mutter, "long ago." They don't appreciate the flowers that scent our modern June; "alas," they sigh, "for bygone hours, when every one raised a prune! And if these people dwell on bliss, when gone to Kingdom Come, they'll sigh, "Confound a harp like this—I wish I had a drum!" The world is brighter now, today, than e'er it was before, and foolish is that fretful jay who sighs for things of yore.

"Have another glass of water," advised the great detective.

His fair visitor did so (see footnote) and resumed.

"I am not superstitious, sir, but I am deathly afraid of ghosts. It is said that forty-two murders were committed at various times in our house before we moved in, and I fear the terrible rumblings in our cellar must be the poor souls dragging their chains around, or something. It has been going on for three afternoons now, and I am in a terrible state. See me shake!"

The great detective saw her shake for a few moments, and then said, "Has your husband a telephone number?"

He had, and the great detective, calling him up, inquired, "Excuse me, Mr. Swithkins, but have you ordered any coal lately? Fifteen tons? Thank you."

Have another glass of water," advised the great detective.

To Stop Cramp in the Leg.

To those who suffer from cramp in the leg at night, the following may be useful: When the cramp comes on take a good long string—a long garter will do—wind it round the leg over the place that is affected, and take the end in each hand and, give it a sharp pull—one that will cause a little pain. Instantly the cramp will depart, and the sufferer can return to bed assured it will not come on again that night.—Healch.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

DISH WASHING.
(By Howard L. Rana.)

DISH washing is a genteel form of penal servitude which pursues the female sex with relentless step from the cradle to the grave. It is the only kind of housework which a woman can't go away and forget for a week without causing the pantry to look like a rummage sale.

Dish washing always comes at a time when a woman would rather curl up in a hammock and a house gown and nurse herself in a love story to the depth of several feet. If a woman passes up the supper dishes in order to dissipate at the annual meeting of cemetery association, she will run out of breakfast implements and have to serve the wedding.

It is usually customary to wipe dishes after they have been washed, and some clever, domineering women lead their husbands into the kitchen by the ear, label them with a gingham apron and turn them loose on the crockery. There ought to be a law against this cruel custom, which is so humiliating to the proud spirit of man and causes him to go around with parboiled fingers. If there is anything which will remove the glamour from the state of conjugal felicity it is the sight of a ham-fisted husband trying to crowd his right hand and a wiping towel into a Mason jar at one and the same time.

Dish washing has a tendency to encourage economy in the use of superfluous tableware, and some men become so well trained that they never think of asking for an extra knife with which to eat their pie. It also does away with the individual butter plate and the reckless disbursement of teaspoons. There is never any trouble in the home when a man is willing to use one plate as a haven of rest for everything from lamb stew to hubbard pie.

If the men of this country had to wash the dishes for a straight week, there would be more coupon meal tickets sold.

Genius.

Something immortal happens, when man brings love to a thirsting woman.

The children of women who hunger after spiritual things—these are the children of genius and dreams.

These who go out alone and full of yearning to find "the white presences among the hills."—Wall Lexington Comfort.

Won Papa's Dollar.

Martha's school report card had very low marks. Her father promised her a dollar if she got a hundred in anything. Shortly after that she fell sick. When the doctor had taken her temperature the mother asked him what the temperature was. "A hundred and four," was the reply. "Mother," cried Martha, "I have won the dollar from papa. I've got over a hundred."
